I 741

27 Jan.

937 WILHELM PHILIP, j. m., and EVA SCHIRTS, j. d. Banms published three times, without any objection, in the church of the Camp.

1 The “Calendar of Landpapers” of the State of New York, published in Albany in 1864, mentions on page 91 an Indian deed, dated July 27, 1709, “for a certain tract of land, by the Indians called Winegetkonk, and parts adjacent, lying on both sides of Murderer’s creek, in the county of Ulster, containing about sixteen miles square.” There was no authorized system of spelling Indian proper names in early days, and Wenistingkonk and Wenigtkonk (see marriage 1139) are doubtless modifications of the Indian name spoken of in this deed.

2 The present Rhinebeck, formerly called Rhinebeck Flats. (See Smith’s History of Dutchess Co., p. 397.)
